University Plans 'Energy Day,' Expects Annual Savings Will Top $2.5 Million

Can individuals make a difference in conserving energy at an institution as large as Princeton University?

Members of the university's faculty, staff and student body will get a chance to find out this Wednesday, "Energy Day" at Princeton

"We hope that on Energy Day people will try to be conscious of their use of energy," said Michael E McKay, assistant to the director of Princeton's engineering and construction department. Mr McKay and others will monitor the university's consumption of fuel and electricity Wednesday, and then report to members of the university community on how well they did

No one will be asked to do anything drastic on Energy Day, according to Mr. McKay. "We would prefer that they not do anything unusual, we don't want people trying to work in the dark or postponing a laboratory experiment that will use a lot of energy We just want to get a picture of how much we can cut our energy consumption under normal circumstances when everyone is cooperating to avoid energy waste "Mr. McKay thinks the potential saving may be great as 15 percent.

In a letter to all university personnel, Eugene J McPartland, general manager of planning, plant and properties at Princeton, listed various ways employees could conserve energy:

• Turn off lights when leaving a room, even if it's for a short period of time:

Use desk lamps instead of overhead lights;

 Minimize the use of electrical equipment such as pencil sharpeners, coffee makers, copying machines, etc.,

• Turn off lypewriters, calculators and dictating eaipment when not in use,

Shut off unused tume hoods in laboratories;

Keep thermostats at 65 degrees

Although these seem like small measures, energy savings could be sizable, Mr. McKay said. Estimating that turning off idle typewriters alone, campuswide, might save up to $2,000 worth of electricity per year Our emphasis is not merely one of saving the university money," he says. "More importantly, this is a chance to conserve our increasingly scarce resources -- and why not do so?"

Princeton's energy expenditures for next year are expected to be $7.2 million. A more telling statistic is the growing percentage of the university's budget this figure represents in 1973, energy accounted for 2.2 percent of the budget, in 1980, energy's slice of the pie is twice as large, 4.4 percent (The total operating budget for Princeton's main campus in 1979-80 is about $125 million)

Yet in that same period of time, since 1973, Mr. McKay estimates that Princeton has saved approximately 25 percent through its energy conservation program. This fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1980, the program is expected to save over $2.5 million. Without the conservation measures, he estimates that Princeton would have used 8.3 million.

Revised Plans for Princeton's Center Are Unveiled: Palmer Square, Inc. Has More Changes in Mind

Princeton's center, as unveiled by Venturi and Rauch Monday and Tuesday nights, would begin at the east with a 100-unit apartment complex for the elderly, set back from a new Library Plaza and would look westward down a Hulfish Street vista to Chambers Street, where a 500-car garage on "Chambers South" would serve as anchor to the whole. (See map, page 6.)

Since the consultants' work is a detailing of ideas hammered out in many citizens Steering Committee meetings last spring and summer, it was startling to hear Eugene Mc-Partland, for Palmer Square, Inc. (and, therefore, for Princeton University) say, almost diffidently:

"The Inn expansion is a bit fuzzier now. It will be more rooms than restaurant and public space. The expansion may have to be closer to the present building, which could affect that plaza."

It could, in fact, wipe it out. Denise Scott-Brown, of the V. & R. firm, had shown slides of a Hulfish roadbed converted to pedestrianism, with a plaza and small amphitheatre where the Nassau Inn swimming pool now is ("a quiet plaza - no rock and roll"), a covered arcade as an entrance to the expanded Nassau Inn (where the Playhouse parking lot now is), and enough covered and open spaces for a 12-month space which is, as Ms. Scott-Brown explained, "what the people wanted."

But Mr. McPartland said it might not be economical to have the two sections of the Nass so far apart.

"Each time we think we have a handle, PSI has thrown in another monkey-wrench!" exclaimed Ann McGoldrick, a Steering Committee member. "First, it was housing: they took that away and gave us offices. Now this basic change thrown at us changes the whole concept. As hard as we work, PSI does it to us, again!"

"I am disturbed, too," Mayor Robert W. Cawley said grimly.

Mr McPartland said PSI still does not have figures which will show whether PSI and its majority stockholder, Princeton University, can afford the expansion at all. He said he hopes to have them by a January 17 public hearing.

The new Library Plaza would be separated from the PCH housing by a low wall. There would be a pool in the corner, near Bill's Men's Shop. shade trees, lots of benches and a place where retired elderly could listen in on a library story hour. Tables and shuffledboard could be part of the Plaza, Ms. Scott-Brown suggested.

The PCH building would be tall, but set back from North Tulane, with car access on the east, behind the North Tulane houses. Stores in the PCH building, fronting on Spring, might be the kinds of convenience stores elderly tenants would need, she said.

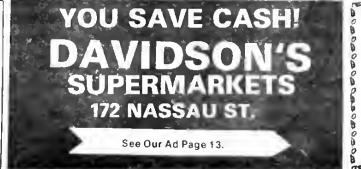

"If anyone is upset at this plan," Ms Scott-Brown remarked, "It's probably Palmer Square residents with west windows

Alan Frank, who owns Langrock's, said he objected 'outside organizations coming in here and telling us what to do," and he said darkly that "unless something good happens, there won't be a Central Business District.

Pressed by Mayor Cawley, he admitted that he liked "80 percent" of the V. & R. plan.

Monday night's presentation of the plans was for the Steering Committee, Tuesday's was for the Planning Board

Mr. Sander pressed PSI to confer quickly with V. & R. on possible changes in the two Nassau Inn sections because, as he told PSI, "that east-west Hulfish axis has a lot to do with the plan and we haven't much time." Mayor Cawley quickly seconded Mr. Sander's urging.

Most Planning Board Office members were worried about quick drop-offs of children at the public library. There is -deliberately -- no road around Library Plaza to make a moat between it and the library and PCH The board questioned the advisability of any loop in and out of Wiggins near the Public Service building, as a

When someone proposed cutting back PCH to make such a road, Mayor Cawley said quickly that he would not accept less than too apartments; others said they would accept no more than five stories in height. So the question of picking up children from the library was left on the shelf.

Mrs. Penick elaborated on her proposal of the night before to move PCH to the Chambers North site, a greener and more private spot, hut board member Constance Greiff pointed out Princeton's Center that the library site was closer ping and more suitable for elderly residents, because it was closer to activity

Civil Rights Commission Marks Its 10th Anniversary, Noting Some Welcome Progress, with Other Goals Yet to Be Achieved

when everybody said "Negro" and the word "black" was almost a slur, the Princeton Joint Civil Rights Commission celebrated its tenth anniversary this week. And looked ahead . . .

"Blatant discrimination has diminished," observed Albert O. Campbell, who has been on the Commission since it was housing, especially. I remember when our first chairman, who was black, had trouble finding a house to buy. Now, it's mostly the money!

But Mr. Campbell, who has lived in Princeton 40 years, warned that there is still discrimination, "We mustn't fool ourselves -- always here," he said.

Max Blumenfeld, another who has served on the Commission from the beginning, agreed.

"It's a never-ending job," he remarked. 'There is always a pool of people who can't accept the idea that people should be treated as human beings, regardless of color, nationality, sex, or whatever."

Only One Case in Court. At the start, the Commission was concerned with housing, and it was instrumental in obtaining equal-opportunity housing ordinances in both Borough Township. and Mr. Blumenfeld says there has been only one case -- con-cerning a landlord who refused to rent to a black tenant -- that actually got to Borough magistrate's court. "It's better now, for women," she says, "although it's still not where we want it -Princeton banks are better than banks in other towns about lending money to women, but how many women professors are there at Princeton?

Aliens to be Aided, "Aliens women's movement, and Ms. are entitled to a fair hearing but they don't always get fair treatment in advance and they may have been subject to illegal house searches and the like," he says. "There are a lot of aliens in Princeton, and this may be our next new problem.

Mr. Bleimeier has highest praise for Ms. Hill. "She is so very important!" he ex-claimed. "She grew up in Princeton, she knows everybody in town and she can talk with people who bring in a complaint, because she probably knows them personally I can't praise her highly enough.'

Mr. Blumenfeld chuckles

"I didn't want a white houses and sold them to black liberal-type in that job -- I wanted a black," he says.
"Our big problems were in the Witherspoon-John area, and like Squibb, Educational we needed someone people Testing Service, RCA and who live here could relate to. And you know what? Some their employment bulletins others on the Commission said and she tries to link up job I was a bigot!'

HOSPITAL BEGINS CASE For Office Building, Lives have heen saved and patientdays in the hospital reduced by having doctors' offices near the main hospital, Medical Center president John Kauffman told the Township Zoning Board last Wednesday, as the Center began its case for permission to construct an office-building on Witherspoon and Henry, where Corner House has been located

The Medical Center's presentation will be continued at the next Zoning meeting, Wednesday, December 26 at 7:30. The meeting place will be announced.

The Center plans a fourstory, 40,000-square-foot building for doctors' offices, practical nursing classrooms, the out-patient service that accounts for 70 percent of the Center's X-ray work, and meeting rooms. For the portion of the building devoted to offices, the Center needs a use variance because offices are not a permitted use in that residential zone. The Center must also obtain variances related to height and setbacks.

Mr. Kauffman reminded the Mr. Kaufman reminded the board that the 1968 Township Master Plan limits the hospital to the Witherspoon-Franklin-Henry-Harris quadrangle. BOARD SAYS "NO!"

Classification. proposal to classify New Jersey's public schools has brought the wrath of Princeton's school board down upon the heads of the state Board of Education.

Princeton's board, in a letter to the state board, declares its opposition to two aspects of the state proposal: "the pigeonholing or labeling of sizeable groups of children into global categories such as 'approved,' 'unapproved', etc. and what the Princeton board terms "classification" and "evaluation.

The recommendation to the State Board of Education comes from Commissioner of Education Fred Burke, Mr. Burke recommends classifying schools as "approved," "disapproved" or 'approved with reservations." In .ome cases, an into one category; in others, an individual school might have a classification different from other schools in the district.

The proposal is related to the state's thorough-andefficient education law, which requires school districts to set goals and outline the ways they are to be achieved. In 'Alcoholism can be a destroyer of families. For young children, an alcoholic parent means that life is a long nightmare of cruelty, uncertainty, violence. It was that way for 12-year old Christine, an only child with nobody to talk to about her mother's terrifying behavior.

'It was her school that referred Christine - and her mother - to Family Service, knowing that treatment of alcoholism is one of the agency's strongest departments. It's a long, often tortuous road that alcoholics and their families must travel, but for Christine and her mother, the way has begun.'

Three Princeton Churches to Ring Bells Daily to Mark Hostages Plight in Iran

Three Princeton churches are responding to a suggestion made by Bruce Laingen, the American Charge in Iran who is being held at the Foreign Ministry, that church bells be rung each noon until the hostages in Iran are released. The suggestion was endorsed by President Carter and brought to the attention of the media by Press Secretary Jody

St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Nassau and Moore streets, rings the Angelus each noon anyway, but Fr. Evasio DiMarcellis said he would "give a few extra tugs" on behalf of the safe release of the hostages. The Princeton United Methodist Church, Nassau Street and Vandeventer Avenue, said it was glad to ring its bells for the hostages, and a church member offered to come on his lunch hour, climb the ladder and ring them each day.

Bells will also ring from Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, but the Rev. John Crocker Jr. expressed concern that another directive might be forthcoming "from on high, asking people to cool it," and said Trinity's bells would be rung for a week on a sort of wait-and-see basis. The three churches are the only ones in Princeton with bells.

PAPERS SET AFIRE

At Cox's Store. Those who get their New York Sunday Times at Cox's Store, 182 Nassau Street, were forced to get them elsewhere this week.

Approximately 30 bundles of papers stacked near the door were set afire early Sunday morning. Police received a call at 3:49 a.m. from a passing motorist that papers in front of the store were on fire.

Heat from the fire shattered a front window before police were able to put out the flames, with extinguishers from their patrol cars. There was also some smoke damage, according to Capt. Theodore Lewis. The papers were destroyed.

"It appears to have been deliberately set," said Capt. Lewis. Ptl. William Hunter of the department's arson squad was called in to assist in the investigation being conducted by Det. Charles Harris.

The best way to assure vourself of a fresh free is to select it early, trees are cut at the same time, so the sooner you select yours and get if home to take care of, the better your chances of keeping it fresh in addition, selections are always better early

Here are some hints on leating for freshness

- Rub a linger across the buff, stickiness is a sign of freshness
- Bounce the stump hard on he ground several times, it needles shed or pull off easily, treshness is gone.
- Watch for patches of browned needles, this muans the tree has already started to dry out
- Look for odor and color fragrant odor and healthylooking green needles are further signs of freshness

Once you have selected your tree, the following suggestions will keep it fresh at home until you're ready to put it up

- Cut an inch or two off the stump at a slant, and then peel back the back another inch (The allows more surface meacapable of absorbing liquid)
- Place the tree, upright, in a bucket of cold water, keep in a
- Occasionally sprinkle water on the needles. (Some people prefer to spray the ricedless with an anti-trangitant com-( bauoa
- You might also add a cup or Iwo of sugar to the water it the bucket

Finally, when you bring the text inside for frimming, be sure to keep it most by periodically checking the water level in your free stand

Lawrenceville Resident Invents Game of 'Nuke.' Offering Participants Satire on Nuclear Power

If you're sitting around with idle hands, caught between receiving your PhD and entering law school, what are you going to do with your Inventa game, of course.

Andrea Asaro, who found herself with a new doctorate in political philosophy from Princeton and an invitation to enter University of Pennsylvania law school, invented 'NUKE.

"It's a satire on nuclear power. In case this strikes you as an odd subject for fun and games, or perhaps something too esoteric for anybody but the family nuclear physicist, just think of Monopoly. NUKE is a direct, linear descendant

For All Ages, "Kids love it!" exclaimes Ms. Asaro, the first-year law student. A woman of explosive nuclear energy herself, she found it as exciting to invent NUKE as the kids -- or adults -- do to play it.

Object of the game is to build a nuclear power plant. You must obtain one each of five permits and one billion dollars to win If you go bankrupt, you must drop out of the game. As many as four can play. The game, unlike perpetual Monopoly, lasts about half an hour. It has swings and balances, as various players cope with the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune

Start at your corner of the hoard. Throw the die, and you're off

"It gives you a chance to exercise some skill and discretion," Ms. Asaro explains. "It's not merely a

An Imaginary Boat. At its prime, the Beatty Catalpa measured 11 feet four inches in circumference at breast height, according to a 1950's or early 60's article in American Magazine. Its magnificent branches spread over 75 feet. The article goes on to describe a time when hazing was a custom at the University and the great branches held rows of Prin-ceton freshmen solemnly pretending they were rowing a boat, using toothpicks for oars, while their sophomore tormentors stood by cheering and jeering.

John Hammer of Library Place says that his children used to call the catalpa "The Worry Tree," because it looked so distressed and dismal in winter. However, each spring the old tree would leaf out, put forth its huge white blossoms and flourish once more.

There is one survivor. After the tree surgeons had sawed up the trunk and limbs in great hunks and laid them out on the lawn, a relatively young sapling, about 12 feet tall, became apparent, springing form the contorted base of its parent. An earlier off-shoot, planted by Mrs. Larson in her own garden and nurtured as a prospective gift to the Historical Society, was felled by an over-zealous gardener, and only a stump remains.

NEW TEACHERS AND STAFF: AN INTRODUCTION AND A WELCOME

This has been a year of change in the Princeton schools, beginning with the principals, but also in the classrooms. Over the next few weeks the Highlights reporters will introduce some of the new faces at their schools, We're delighted to have so many able and interesting people joining the school system, and we welcome them to

Princeton. Ron Steward is the new music teacher at COMMUNITY PARK. His hackground includes Howard University, thirteen years teaching in the New York City public schools and, immediately prior to his arrival in Princeton, a year working with the Royal Theatre in Sweden Teaching at the elementary level is proving to be a new and delightful experience, giving him the opportunity, for the first time, to teach music hasies. He finds too that a discovery process rather than a more formal presentation is ideal for children of this age. Mr. Steward sums up the atmosphere in his music classes saying "It's relaxed and fun making music together. Hove it and they do too." His enthusiasm is infectious; music at CP shows signs of heing a very special "Special."

Eileen Lawrence, the new K teacher at LITTLEBROOK has been involved in kindergarten work since she was a graduate student in education at Antioch-Putney in Vermont. There, she established her own degree criteria - to start her own kindergarten. As state law in nearby New Hampshire did not yet mandate kin-dergarten, Ms. Lawrence began one in the town of Orlord, in a church basement, on a shoestring budget, building community interest herself. Her class soon became a degree tration. Kindergarten. regularly, staffed with demonstration kindergarten, regularly staffed with teachers in training from the Dartmouth School of Education as well as her own Antioch-Putney, A training film made of the enterprise was used in college classrooms.

Returning to New Jersey, her native state, Ms Lawrence slowed down her teaching activity while raising her son, but kept husy with teacher workshops and consulting. Now back in the classroom, her first topic of the year was seeds, how many things we eat are seeds and how they grow. Her experience running a self-sufficient farm in Vermont provides invaluable background for this study. As the K classroom centers more on activities than on workbooks, Ms. Lawrence encourages the children to express themselves in a variety of media. Her dulcimer and banjolele, a cross between a ukelele and a banjo, are on hand to enliven the day. Welcome back, Ms. Lawrence.

Judith McCartin at JOHNSON PARK did not begin her career with an interest in K i teaching. A native of St Paul, Minn., she received a master's degree in English Literature from the University of Minnesota and taught high school English in Minneapolis for one year. That experience called her attention to reading problems which she felt might have been corrected if they had been perceived earlier. The birth and growth of her daughter, now a high school senior, increased her interest in the beginnings of learning. By the time she had moved to Delaware that interest had led her into the field of Early Childhood Education, Courses at Fairleigh Dickinson University and an internship in Delaware were followed by eight years teaching a pre K K in Wilmington, where she also piloted a K-2 program

Two years ago when her husband was transferred by Dupont to Parlin, N.J., Mrs. McCartin began attending Rider College full time, taking a variety of graduate and under-graduate courses in the Elementary education curriculum. She emerged with full N.J. certification for grades K-12. In these few years in N.J., Mrs. McCartin has taught at several age levels. She was a supplementary reading teacher at West Windsor High School, had a 3-4 class at CP last year, and now is back close to the beginning of the learning process, K1 at JP

At JOHN WITHERSPOON MIDDLE SCHOOL J. Alfred Seitz is a new face this year, although he served in the same capacity, assistant principal, across the street at PHS for 15 years. He expresses pleasure with his new post, and finds working with pre-and early-adolescent students challenging and satisfying

Mr. Seitz, who has completed the coursework toward his Doctorate in School Administration, lives in Princeton in a home he designed and built. The father of three grown children, his hobbies include cooking, golf and skiing. The new Assistant Principal is pround to be part of what he believes to be a really exceptional school, and is equally enthusiastic about the staff, students and parents

KEW JERSEY SYMPHONY CONCERT ON DECEM-

The Princeton Chapter of Friends of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra is presenting a seasonal concert on December 12 at 8:15 P.M. in the PHS auditorium. The concert is planned primarily for middle school and high school students, but is open to all the community. It will be given by the Sinfonetta, a thirty-five member section of the orchestra, and will be conducted by George Mauil. Student tickets are $1 if purchased at JWS or PHS during lunch-time on December 5 or all day on December 10 Tickets may also be purchased at the door at a price of $2 for students or senior citizens and $4 for adults. For tickets or information call 921-8139. PRINCETON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS Joanna Froehlich, a senior at PHS, has been awarded a 1979 Achievement Award in Writing by the National Council of Teachers of English. The approximately 850 finalists selected each year represent high schools in all 50 states, Washington D.C. and American schools abroad

School attendance on report cards was omitted madvertently. A copy of the grade report with attendance is available in the PHS main office.

Scores on the California Achievement Tests administered last spring are now available in the guidance offices. Scores on reading, spelling, languages and mathematics are shown in the normal curve equivalent as well as the national percentile rank. Parents wishing to discuss the results should call the Guidance Department to make an appointment with their student's counselor.

COLLEGE UNDER $3000?

Guide Tells of 400. For those who are tired of headlines about how much a college education costs today, the news from the Princeton based publishers of Peterson's Annual Guide Undergraduate Study is cheering. The 1980 edition reveals that over 400 colleges still cost under $3000 - 98 of them less than $2000. With more than 91 percent of the country's 2800 accredited institutions submitting data for the Guide, only 36 schools listed comprehensive fees which include tuition, room and board - of over $7000, and only 125 schools, or less than 5 percent of the total group, listed comprehensive fees of over $6000. "Although schools like Bennington, Williams, Princeton, and Yale are hovering around the $8000 figure," states Peter W. Hegener, President and Publisher of Peterson's, "there are still hundreds of much less expensive colleges that are excellent in every way

Mr. Hegener suggests that students and families who are concerned equally about high quality and low cost correlate the standardized test tables and the tuition figures in the 1980 Guide. "You'll find," he says, "that Deep Springs College in California and Webb Institute of Naval Architecture in New York are among the most demanding colleges in the country and both are virtually tuition-free." Similarly, Cook College of Rutgers University and the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill are two highly regarded institutions that cost under $4000 for out-of-state residents, less than $3000 for their own state residents.

Even at the most expensive colleges the financial picture has an optimistic angle in that the new Guide reveals that high percentages of students are receiving some kind of financial aid. At Princeton, for example, the figure is 45 of percent the dergraduates, the at University of Pennsylvania it is 55 percent, and at Harvard it climbs to 67 percent.

Peterson's new data also contain reassuring news for students concerned about their admission chances. When asked to place themselves in one of five entrance difficulty categories - based on specific standardized test score criteria and on the application - acceptance ratio only 22 schools, or less than 1 percent of the entire group, placed themselves in the "Most Difficult to Enter" category, and 151 considered themselves "Very Difficult to Enter." At the same time a whopping 41.2 percent of the respondents — 992 schools said that they were "Noncompetitive" - that is, that virtually all students are accepted regardless of test scores or high school rank.

The 1984-page guide has profiles of 2500 colleges augmented by detailed twopage descriptions of more than 530 colleges written for the guide by faculty members and administrators. Fully explained are academic programs, campus facilities, student life, costs, financial aid and work programs, local recreation and entertainment possibilities, and the nature of the college community. The 1980 edition is available in bookstores or may be ordered from Peterson's Guides Book Order Department, Box 978, Edison, N.J. 08817, for $12 plus applicable state taxes and $1.25 postage and handling.

FACILITIES EXPANDED At Charley's Brother Restaurant. Charley's Brother, the restaurant on Route 518 Spur in Hopewell. has redecorated its downstairs lounge and converted it into banquet and party facilities that will accomedate up to 175.

Owner Merrill Zinder of the Goodtime Charley chain says that new carpeting and new chairs and tables have been installed. The downstairs has also been repainted and a new, banquet-size bar added.

Charley's Brother has recently added an attractive Garden Room upstairs and has received many requests, Mr. Zinder said, for banquets, which prompted the decision to convert the downstairs lounge. The three existing dining rooms and the new Garden Cocktail Lounge are open five days for lunch and seven nights each week for

Double Tax-Exempt Income Payable Semiannually.

The Municipal Bond Trust

Multi-State Program, Series 4, New Jersey Trust 1 (A Unit Investment Trust)

Many Municipal Bond Trusts offer federally tax-exempt interest income. But few offer interest income exempt from local taxes as well.

That means The Multi-State Program, Series 4, New Jersey Trust 1, can offer you higher after tax income than most municipal bond trusts offering similar returns. The trust is a diversified portfolio of municipal bonds, all of which have been rated "A" or better by either Moody's or Standard & Poor's. There are a variety of other advantages for buying it too.

- You get a known, double tax-exempt current return.
- Choice of semiannual, quarterly, or monthly interest payments.
- You can sell at any time without sales charges at the current market value.
- Diversified holdings, professionally selected.
- There is no management fee.
- No coupons to clip; no safekeeping problems.

This equesents the net annual interest income privable semanimally after annual expenses divided by the public offering pine on November 29, 1979 pine on November 29, 1979 payable quarterly was 7.90% and payable monthly w 7.87°. #### Dollar Crunch Being Felt by Agencies in Fields of Planning, Health, Aging, Civil Rights as Budgets for 1980 Are Formed

(This is the third in a senes on the 1980 budget requests of joint Borough-Township agencies. This week's article considers budgets of the Board of Health, Planning Board, Joint Civil Rights commission and Join Commission on

Bride-and groom-to-be, glowing like the diamond on her finger; the kid in wornthin jeans getting a free dental check-up; the diner who noticed cockroaches in a restaurant -- the daily report of Princeton's joint Borough-Township Board of Health logs in rich and poor, young and old, everybody in between.

The requested 1980 budget of $26,530 (not including salaries) shows some cutbacks from 1979 but is still $1,200 above the current $25,330 figure. The Township provides two-thirds of the joint health budget, the Borough

Cut-backs are in the contribution to two mental health agencies: Community Guidance, reduced from $4,000 requiring one. to $3,300, and Trinity Counselling, from $2,000 to $1,300. Dental care for the indigent is also less: $3,400 instead of $4,000.

Like so many agencies, boards of health have mandates from the state programs they are required to run, money or no.

Princeton's new monthly Child Health Conference, started this October, is one of these. It's blocked in for $2,200, to pay doctor and nurse. Another required program sets up screening for diabetes. cancer and hypertension, and Princeton's budget shows $700 for this service. The state-required venereal disease counselling service is down for $1,350 -- in contrast to the 1979 figure of $1,150. This is a Thursday evening clinic at the Medical Center, and the money pays for Borough and Township residents who attend.

The biggest item in the absentinforce. Board of Health budget is the $6,500 allocated to nursing services. The program is operated through the Medical enter's Department of Community Health and the budget reflects an increase from $14 to$18 an hour for nursing care.

Nurses in this program make home calls on elderly shut-ins afflicted with cardio- crease. vascular disease, cancer, the problems of diabetes. They also help expectant mothers new baby.

Contractual services like requested budget -- an increase of only $100.

PLANNING BOARD

Needs a Full-Time Planner. Until a road goes where you don't want it or a parking garage is approved or rejected, the Planning Board doesn't intrude on the daily lives of Princeton residents

But it's the body charged by state law with planning the future growth of the community and in 1980, what the Planning Board wants almost more than anything else is a full-time, live-in professional planner.

Full of hope that Borough and Township governments will agree, the board is asking $25,500 to $28,000 for his or her salary, since board members won't even begin to interview for the job until the new Master Plan has been completed - mid-1980, says vicechairman Hans K. Sander only part of that salary would be needed next year.

The last planner, who was making about $21,000, left early this year. The board hired a trio of consultants for $17,500 to complete the Master Plan and tie it all up, but Mr Sander says bringing in consultants isn't a full-time answer to a regular planner; in fact, he refers to the concept of consultants as "a very poor second choice" to a fulltime planner

What the hoard wants is somebody to analyze applications from developers. maintain communications with surrounding towns, the state and the county, give professional advice at board meetings, co-ordinate everything submitted to the

Current McCarter Play, Stoppard's 'Jumpers,' Assures Audience Highly Entertaining Evening

Company's new artistle director, Nagle Jackson, keeps on giving us productions like the current "Jumpers" by Tom Stoppard, and its predecessor "All the Way Home," reviewers will be scrambling for new ways to say "brilliant.

Meanwhile, that's the word for "Jumpers," as directed by Mr. Jackson himself. Of Mr. Stoppard's intellectually intimidating 1972 English farce, opinions will vary Some may he put off by the amount of hard listening it seems to demand. But for the way it is east, directed, performed, set, costumed, and lighted - nothing but cheers

News Of The THEATRES

Perhaps most of all, for those who look to the McCarter Company for their theatre fare year in and year out, the production is enormously reassuring as to Mr. Jackson's taste. "Jumpers" is a playscript booby trapped with opportunities for a director to reveal a weakness for the cheap laugh, the small touch that seems so funny in rehearsal and sereams "too While joyfolly exploiting the improvisational play is hard tertaining us? Next scene: In his apartment study, George, a professor of moral philosophy in a British university, is dictating a lecture to his silent and demure secretary -- who turns out to be the girl on the chandelier an incredibly convoluted, brilliantly borneg lecture which asks the sermonic question, "Is God?"

Borne along on the flood of language are some funny oneliners such as the title of a new book on religion "You Better Believe It!" The lecture -much interrupted -- hrings down the Act I curtain thousands of words later with another sermonic question. "What's so good ahout 'good'?"

An Amusing Set. While George dictates, his wife Dorothy - in the bedroom of John Jensen's practical and amusing multi-room setting -still scantily elad, still wrestles with last night's corpse, she being of course the shapely chanteuse The corpse, in turn, is George's arch-rival in the philosophy Seems the department jumpers are all faculty members who have found Theatre McCarter describes the forthcoming appearance of John Monteith and Suzanne Rand on Friday, December 28, at 8.

Without costumes, props or scenery -- except for a pair of director's chairs and a piano they will present a variety of characters, including game show contestants, snooty film critics, deaf discodancers and a pair of transsexuals who discover they were once married to each other.

They've been compared to Nichols and May. "Time" Magazine even called them the funniest, most inventive comedy team to come along in

As part of their performance, they ask members of the audience to supply a setting and a couple of sentences. Working from there, they improvise a sketch.

After the performance, McCarter Associates will be host at a champagne reception for its members and the two performers. Purchase of a special $15 ticket will enable a member of the Associates to obtain a front-center orchestra seat, admission to the reception and a chance to meet Monteith and Rand.

Two One-Acters by Tennessee Williams Being Presented by Community Players

SUDDENLY - LAST SUMMER: In this scene from "Suddenly Last Summer," one of the short Tennessee Williams dramas now on Community Players' alage, Lila Howley is seen as Mrs. Venable. The plays, combined as "Garden District," will play two more weekands at the PCP Playhouse, 171 Broadmead.

Tennessee Williams's view mother and son, each denying of women is anything but their advancing age. Out of adoring, though he is certainly each trip, her son wrote a faseinated by them poem - one poem a year. But Throughout his work, his last summer, her son chose to strongest, most magnetic go abroad with his lovely (even if not particularly young eousin Catharine Holly alluring) characters are often snobby, unhinged, deluded, and vulnerable Southern women -- and the women in

"Something Unspoken" and "Suddenly Last Summer," the two one-act plays currently running at the Princeton Players' Community Broadmead Theatre, are no exception

Both plays are directed by Nick Procaccinn and are set in the wealthy Garden District of New Orleans. Both revolve around proud, imperial, warped old women who have created their own loneliness.

"Somehting Unspoken," the shorter and less subltle of the two, is about the relationship the forbiddingly majesterial Miss Cornelia Scott (June Cawley) with her timid secretary-companion Grace Lancaster Munro-Jones) and with her social peers. Cornelia attempts to break down the walls that set her olf from others even while she is erecting new ones. She complains about the 'something unspoken'' ween Grace and herself, and Grace tries to oblige her by speaking out But it seems that some things are better left unspoken -- or are simply unspeakable.

An Averriding Stiffness. Something Unspoken" is really a scant skit of a play and it is not quite realized in production. characters seem even stiffer than their discomfort with each other would suggest, and the audience is made to feel the awkwardness of their relationship too directly. I felt relieved when it was over.

"Suddenly Last Summer" is more fully fleshed than 'Something Unspoken.'' It, too, is about a rich, aging. formidably strong woman Mrs Violet Venable (Lila Howley), and shows her overattachment to her recently of deceased middle-aged son Sebastian

This is the situation every summer for 25 years, even when her husband was dying, Mrs. Venable and her son travelled abroad together. more like companions than; CHAN'S RESTAURANT CANTONESE SZECHUAN

Remarkable formance. Rachelle Craig's performance as the lovely, shaken niece is nothing short of remarkable remarkably tender and sympathetic for a Williams character. The play gels the minute she walks into the garden, and while the other performances are competent, they cannot help but pale next to hers.

Lila Howley is young but appropriately steely as Mrs. Venable. Barbara Herzberg gives a characteristically appealing performance as Mrs. Holly, a mother torn between her dependence on her benefactress-sister-in-law and her loyalty to her daughter. Kate La Van plays the stern Sister Felicity, Paul Shapiro the ambitious George Holly, and Marie Bograd the taken-for-granted Misa Foxhill.

In both "Something Unspoken" and "Suddenly Last Summer," the theatre-inthe-round staging gives the audience the feeling that they are spying on private gardens and intimate scenes through a profusion of hanging and potted plants (set by Dick Newman). The two plays make a logical pair as "Garden District," though as in most double-features, one half of the show is partially obscured by the impact of the more powerful mate.

AUDITIONS SCHEDULED

Ry Community Players. Casting calls are out for the pair of short plays to be given in mid-Innuary by Princeton Community Players. Auditions will be held at the PCP theatre, 171 Broadmead, this Monday from 7:30 until 10. If you want to audition, you are ask∈d to call 921-2339.

"Reel to Reel" is Mark Schaeffer's winning play in the 1979 Community Players playwriting contest. A drama about a sound operator in a recording studio and his tenuous love-affair with a young singer, it calls for five adult males and two females, one of whom must be a singer. S. Michael Schnessel will direct

The second play, "A Happy Journey to the Skin of Our Town," by Norman Hart, is a satire on the works of Thornten Wilder requirements are two adult females and one adult male. Joel Geller will direct.

Performance dates for the double bill will be January 11 and 12 and 18 and 19. The presentation is sponsored in part by a grant from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts.

YEAR OF THE CHILD! Marked by Exhibit at Squibb. The Squihh Gallery will mark the International Year of the Child with a mixed media exhibition by Eleanor through January 6.

Martha's Vineyard, Mass., has shown her work extensively throughout the northeast United States and Eurnpe. Using mediums ranging from paper collage to polychrome steel, she creates world populated with a variety

Humor, spontaneity and freshness are important parts of Ms. Hubhard's work, but her primary artistic concerns are balance, symmetry and anti-symmetry. Many of her creations are positioned on tightropes--some poised confidently, others dangling precariously. Although she stresses the happier side of her alternate population. She reminds viewers of her serious intent by placing her characters in curious predicaments or by painting unexpected fangs in their broad smiles.

Art Classes Invited, Art teachers are invited to hold their classes in the Squibb Gallery during the current exhibition. Squibb is inviting one morning and one af-ternoon art class each weekday through December 31 and on Friday, January 4 Teachers may reserve dates by calling Michael Perez, Squibb external relations manager, at 921-4263

Mr. Perez will offer a brief introductory explanation of the International Year of the Child and provide, at the teacher's option, a related art film and a questionnaire on the exhibit for the students. A set of 16 UNICEF posters highlighting children from around the world will also be supplied by Squibb on request for classroom use before the gallery visit. There is no charge for any of the sessions.

Princeton's ability to dominate as the game progressed and the highlycautious play of Mark Rodriguez in the Yale goal, as he smothered numerous slow shots rather than clear them to a teammate, seemed to augur well for the Tigers' fortunes in sudden death. They converted their potential superiority to reality at 1:05, Casey winning the draw on a faceoff to the right of the Bulldogs' goal, passing back to junior Dave Tweedy, who whistled the puck into the top of the far corner.

Dennis was credited with 34 saves, 16 of them in the third period, putting his goals allowed total at eight for a fine 2.8 average. After his play against Holy Cross and Dartmouth, he was named ECAC goalie and rookie of the week, sharing the honors with Bob Barrich, who will be in the nets Saturday for B.U. His play has been a decisive factor in Princeton's ability to earn a 3-0 record for the first time since 1961.

A 2-0 deficit after two periods in the game at Orono Friday was more than the Tigers could overcome. They narrowed the gap to 2-1 early in the final round but yielded two more before scoring again with seven seconds left. Freshman Jim Matthews and sophomore Sean Sherman made the Princeton goals.

A NCAA survey of basketball teams with the best defensive statistics over the past decade pays tribute to Princeton and the Ivy League.

Only six teams in the nation rank among the top 25 in all three of the principal departments: fewest average points allowed, best defense against field goals and widest margin between points scored and points allowed. #### Volunteers Foundation of Joint Agencies

Citizen volunteers, appointed by the governing bodies, are the foundation of all the joint agencies. They determine the direction they want the agency to gake, and a professional director - except for Aging and, temporarily. the Planning Board - runs the store

The state law that allows regional health commissions has no provision for wiping out local health boards, so Borough and Township still have their own boards, which do little except provide people to appoint to the Regional Health Commission. Dr. Margaret M. Junker, a member of the Borough Board of Health, is chairman of the joint commission. Other members are Louise Bessire (Borough), Margaret Sprout (Township), Marjorie Smith (Township) and alternates Charlotte Gipson, Evelyn Geddes (both Borough), Barbara Lependorf and Melvin A Benarde (both Township.

Borough Board of Health members, in addition to those named above, are Helen M Bess and Dr. Derrill I. McGuigan Township Board of Health members besides those on the Regional Commission, are Margaret Broadwater and Carl Hoyler

Although the Planning Board is supposed to have 14 members - equally divided -- it has been shy one Borough member for several years and is now lacking two. Mayor Rohert W. Cawley has been trying to obtain representation from the business community without success. It is not easy to find Planning Board members: hours are long, work is arduous, technical and painstakingly done.

Borough members are Margen Penick (chairman), Wendy Benchley, Nancy T. Myers, Charles Cornforth and Mayor Cawley. Township members are Hans K. Sander, Constance Greiff, Ralph Phillips, Jerome Rose, Elizabeth Hutter, Hugo Hoogenboom and Mayor Josie Hall.

Daniel F Sullivan is chairman of the Joint Commission on Aging. Members are George T. Geary, Helen W. Sherman, Joseph Procaccino, M. Elizabeth Moore, Anne E. Truitt, Lynn Maher, Morris Forer and Ruby Campbell.

The Joint Commission on Civil Rights members are John K. Bleimaier, chairman; Priscilla A. Waring, Alfred O. Campbell, William H. Scheide, Jacqueline Swain, Max Blumenfeld, Beatrice Boyer, Martha Hartmann, Warren Huff Jr. and Thomas Lindenfeld, Mr. Campbell and Mr. Blumenfeld have been on the Commission since it was formed, ten years ago.

Agency Budgets

College and the rest of the campus and the Dinky station plans

The board not only lacks a full-time professional, it now lacks an administrative coordinator, as well. The coordinator hired in the spring left last week. The board has budgeted $10,485 to $13,382 for her replacement. There is a full-time secretary at $10,000 and a part-timer at $4.50 an

A big 1980 budget item is $5,000 for printing. That will buy 400 copies of the new Master Plan in three colors for $3,200, plus a stripped-down 10,000 copies for mailing to Princeton residences.

Resigned to what may be inevitable, the board is asking $3,000 for the litigation it suspects may follow adoption of The Plan. (The same sum, budgeted for this year, was not needed).

Money for the board's lawyer is a hoped-for $12,500, up $1,500 from 1979. There is $5,500 to prepare all the ordinances that will be needed to set the Master Plan in motion, $2,500 for special meetings, $1,440 for the shorthand reporter, for a legal total of $24,940

AGING

Activities for Princeton's senior citizens are dispersed among many agencies --Recreation, the Housing Authority, Crosstown 62, the Joint Commission on Aging.

This year, the Aging budget met by equal contributions from Borough and Township -is $8,160, which includes $6,660 in salary for Jocelyn Helm. the Senior Citizens Resource Center co-ordinator. The rest of the budget is $1,500 -- same as last year.

Most of it pays for the extratelephone in the Senior Citizens Resource Center in Lloyd Terrace, to help Mrs. Helm with the many calls she makes to state and county agencies concerned with the elderly.

There is money for subscriptions to periodicals dealing with senior citizens; travel money for Mrs. Helm, who is in demand as a resource person (but she's been known to pay her own way) and money for such special projects as soda for the annual Landau senior citizens picnic.

CIVIL RIGHTS

"I'm using carbon paper I've had six years," says Civil Rights Commission director Joan Hill, to illustrate frugality. Her joint agency is asking $2,325 for 1980, compared to $2,255 this year.

She is the only employee -earning $13,272 - but she and the Commission are asking for part-time secretary. They have one in the summer, through CETA, and they think they can stretch this back into spring. That means the budget request is for September
